South Bay parks named in honor of Tanner, Cox

SOUTH BAY—The South Bay City Commission officially named its two municipal parks presently under construction by Seiple Contractors, Inc., of Coral Springs.

The Commission agreed to name the park located at Northwest First Street, the former site of South Bay Elementary School, The Douglas Tanner Park in honor of Mayor Donald Tanner's son who was killed in an automobile accident on Oct. 10, 1981.

The park located at Northwest Eighth Ave. and Palm Beach Road was named The Vermita Cox Park in honor of Commissioner Cox.

Mrs. Cox, a life-long resident of the city, was the first black person elected to the commission in South Bay and the first black mayor in Palm Beach County.

Vice-Mayor Ray Sullivan suggested the parks be named in Mayor Tanner's and his son's honor and Acting City Manager Lomax Harrelle's honor.

Tanner said he was honored to have the park named in his son's memory. He also made the suggestion to name one of the parks in Mrs. Cox's honor.

The parks are being constructed with funds the city received from South Bay Growers, Inc., and the Palm Beach County Community Development Department.

Pigeon drop scam bilks woman of $15,500

BELLE GLADE—Two women and two men, using a variation of the "pigeon drop" scam, made off with $15,500 of an elderly Belle Glade resident's money over the holidays.

According to police, two women approached Melissa Wilson of 224 SW Sixth Street bank and went to Fort Lauderdale where she borrowed $7,500 on a savings account with the Coral Gables Federal Savings and Loan Association.

She gave the men the $11,500. They deposited a $10,000 check in her account at Everglades Federal.

The check, drawn on an account in a Detroit bank under the name Miles W. Truesdell, Jr., has been discovered to be a counterfeit, according to Eberle.

December 30 Wilson received an envelope which was supposed to contain $5,000. When she opened it, all Wilson found was strips of newspapers.

December 29 she was approached by two men, who told her they knew of the scam and could get her money back. They introduced themselves as security officials, according to Detective J.L. Eberle.

To get her money returned, they needed bait, they told her. She removed $4,000 from a local bank and went to Fort Lauderdale where she borrowed $7,500 on a savings account with the Coral Gables Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Commission favors moderate rate hike

BELLE GLADE City Commissioners met in their first meeting of the year Monday, Jan. 4, to discuss financing for city water and sewer improvements. Commissioners chose the least expensive of two alternatives offered by

BELLE GLADE—Meeting for the first time in 1982 — a three hour workshop with the city's engineering and financial consultants present — Belle Glade City Commissioners Monday, Jan. 4, indicated they favor the more moderate of two utility rate hike alternatives.

In action which must be validated during a future regular commission meeting, commissioners agreed to validate a $8.4 million bond issue, but to issue only $4,075,000 for water and sewer improvements.

At the outset of Monday night's meeting, Jim Senoff of Briley, Wild and Associates, Inc., consulting engineers and planners from Riviera Beach, presented the alternatives to the city for the improvements.

The city could: 1. Validate and issue $7.9 million in revenue bonds. 2. Validate the $7.9 revenue bond issue but issue only $4,075,000 at the present time, or 3. Validate and issue $4,085,000 in revenue bonds.

At the suggestion of bond expert Loomis Leedy, commissioners added five percent to the $7.9 million figure as a safety factor.

As soon as the legal legwork is completed, commissioners will meet in special session to adopt a resolution for the bond issue. May 1st is one date mentioned at Monday's meeting for bond sale.

A key to the decision reached by commissioners Monday was a comparison of water and sewer charges.

Under the more expensive plan, water and sewer rates would have increased to $35.10 a month for 5,000 gallons of water and sewer usage.

Under the more moderate plan, the combined total would be $24.76, an increase of $8.21, a figure which is in the ballpark with rates charged by many other cities in south Florida.

With their moderate approach, commissioners will be able to clean up the city's drinking water supply and to complete all of the planning for sewer improvements.

Only construction of waste water treatment facilities, a project which could not have commenced for one year anyway, will be omitted by the decision to issue only $4,075,000 in bonds.

Glades Central improved its Suncoast West Conference record to 5-0 and its overall record to 7-1.

The Raiders junior varsity team beat the Crusaders by a score of 29-23.

Senior and team captain Diane Bussie led the Raiders in scoring with 14 points. Also adding points to the score board for the Raiders were Cissandra Strachan with 6 points, Annette Miller with 4, Sharon Roberts pumped in 13, Denise Bussie hit the net for 9, Gloria Stewart had 2 and Karen Gooden contributed 4 points.

The leading scorer for Newman was Marilu Almeida with 11 points. Newman record now stands at 5-3.

Thus far this season Raiders have defeated Martin County twice, Suncoast, Lake Worth, Palm Beach Gardens and Cardinal Newman. The Raiders, coached by Mike Logsdon, who carried the Raiders to the state championship last year, expect to finish their schedule with a good showing and a return trip to the state playoffs again.

Pahokee Blue Devils fall to Mustangs

WEST PALM BEACH — The Pahokee High School girls basketball team fell to the North Shore Mustangs in an exciting game in the Mustangs gym Monday night.

The Devils lost to the Mustangs by a score of 43-36. Monday's loss gives Pahokee a 4-1 record.

The leading scorer for the Devils was forward Sylvia Addie, who pumped in 12 points. Center Kimberly Power hit the net for 10 points.

The Devils out scored the Mustangs in the final quarter 18 points to 7, however their strong team effort was not enough for the Devils to overtake the Mustangs, who outscored them the first three quarters.

Junior forward Andrea Cowart scored 20 points and had eight rebounds to lead North Shore to its victory.

The Devils will play the Glades Central Raiders at home Thursday, Jan. 7.

Bike training

TALLAHASSEE — Children who receive new bicycles for Christmas should be properly trained in their use before allowing them to ride on streets and highways.

said the Florida Highway Patrol today. Patrol records for the first nine months of 1981 show that 99 persons were killed riding bicycles. That means that a bicyclist was killed every 2.76 days. During all of 1980, 109 bicycle riders died and of those killed, almost half of them were 19 years old or younger. There were 58 fatalities in the urban areas and 51 outside of municipalities. As well as being schooled in the proper method of riding a bike, new riders should be taught the basics of traffic safety. Night riding on bicycles should be a no-no but if it becomes absolutely necessary, proper lights and reflectors should be used as well as light clothing or strips of reflective material sewed on the clothing. Bright colored clothing and a pole with an orange pennant on top will help prevent accidents in the daylight.

Colonel Eldridge-Beech, Patrol director, advises parents to shoulder their responsibility and teach children receiving new bikes for Christmas the safest method of enjoying their new gift.

Time running out to stalk deer

The deer and turkey season will end January 10 in the Northeast, Central, South and Everglades Regions," said Fred W. Stanberry, director of the Division of Wildlife for the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

In the Northwest Region the deer season is scheduled to end January 31, along with the "gobblers-only" turkey season in Leon, Gadsden, Wakulla and Jefferson counties.

Stanberry also reminded hunters that the wild hog season officially ends Jan. 10, where declared legal game. Those areas are in Palm Beach and Alachua counties and the portions of Collier, Dade and Monroe counties west of Levee 28, south of State Road 84, north of Everglades National Park and east of State Road 23. The bear season in Baker and Columbia counties also close Jan. 10.

Happy New Year

Economic Recovery Tax Act goes into effect

BELLE GLADE — Working Americans will now be able to establish retirement accounts with their own tax-deferred contributions, as well as directly control the investment of those retirement funds, under the provisions of the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 that goes into effect January 1, 1982.

According to Thomas L. Altman, manager of E.F. Hutton's Belle Glade office, "The 1981 tax act may be the most significant piece of legislation affecting the future security of working Americans passed in our lifetime. The new provisions affecting Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) allow wage earners to contribute up to $2,000 per year to their own IRA even if they are already covered by another pension program," Altman said.

Before the passage of the 1981 tax act, only those wage earners not covered by a pension program could establish their own IRA, Altman stated, and the amount which they were allowed to contribute on a tax-deferred basis was limited to $1,500 per person. Among the many advantages of the new IRA legislation, Altman declared, is the direct control it offers wage earners over the investment of their retirement funds. IRA contributions can be made in virtually all investment vehicles including stocks, growth stocks and savings accounts. The only essential restriction is on investment in such "collectibles" as antiques, stamps and precious metals, for example.

Altman also pointed out that since most wage earners will be in a lower tax bracket after retirement, their IRA funds have the added benefit of being taxed at a rate that is lower than would have been the case during the wage earner's working lifetime.

Well, "Auld Lang Syne" has come and gone and I hope your's was a pleasant one. In case you ever wondered what it was you were singing, the words mean "Old Lang Syne." Auld Lang Syne commemorates old times and old friendships fondly remembered. It's a song of parting and also a song of reunion: Should old acquaintance be forgot, And never brought to mind? Should old acquaintance be forgot, And old lang syne?

For auld lang syne, my dear, For auld lang syne, We'll take a cup o' kindness yet, For auld lang syne. The words are by Scottish poet Robert Burns, who lived in the 1700s. While Burns may be long gone, his little ditty appears to be practically immortal, despite the fact few of us understand what it is we are singing.

New Years is a time of tradition, including hangovers, hog jowls and black eyed peas for dinner and good luck, resolutions, and buying a new calendar.

Depending on the hangover, some may still be holding to their first new year's resolution, never to drink again. If you fall into this category, the smell of booze may make you woozy and prone to run to nearest exit at the slightest whiff of spirits.

If you recall waking up about noon on Jan. 1st and wishing you were dead, perhaps it is fortunate for you that New Years comes only once a year.

While it may not be as much fun eating New Years dinner as it is getting a hangover (opinions differ) moderation here again is advised.

At my house for instance, we had black-eyed peas and ham with cracklin' corn bread and collards.

You'll notice, we substituted ham for hog jowls. Tradition is one thing, but it can be carried too far. I'll be the first to admit that hog jowls may just be the ambrosia of life, but I'll have to pass. Hog jowl lovers of the world, you can have my share.

As for resolutions, I made all of those that I care to make last week. I believe the fewer resolutions made the better. Resolutions are like promises, mirrors, and hearts: made to be broken.

One of the best things anyone can do for himself on New Years is buy a new calendar. Unlike hog jowls, hangovers, and resolutions, calendars are useful.

Mainly, they are helpful in remembering birthdays, anniversaries, vacations, shopping days till Christmas, and so on.

For some reason, all of the dates worth remembering generally are going to cost you a lot of money.

Perhaps that's one reason on New Years Eve, many of us take more than "a cup o' kindness" for auld lang syne.

- *Treat your credit cards like cash. Keep records of account numbers and if cards are lost or stolen, notify the card company at once.
- *Be careful when using credit cards to shop by telephone. Many consumers have lost money from purchases charged against their account because they trustingly gave credit card numbers to strangers on the telephone.
- *Never give anyone a blank, endorsed check. No matter how honest someone seems, they may cheat you by filling in a larger amount than is agreed upon.
- *Beware of get-rich-quick schemes. Any investment which promises high returns with no risk to you is undoubtedly questionable.
- *Watch out for the phony bank examiner scheme. If someone posing as a bank official approaches you and asked for your help in catching a crooked employee, don't believe it. Banks never operate this way, and if you fall for the scheme, you'll end up losing money.
- *Read all contracts carefully and make sure you understand the terms. Never sign a contract which has blank spaces.
- *Last, but not least, be cautious of any dealing involving your money which sounds unbelievably good. If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

The Grahams instead of sending Christmas cards each year sends $100 donations to numerous Florida-non-profit agencies and community groups.

REASON #12: The changing tax laws.

The Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 affects every taxpayer, regardless of income. Your H&R Block tax preparer can show you how the new tax law helps you save money on your 1981 taxes, and point out changes that could affect your taxes in 1982.

How do you view racial climate?

BELLE GLADE - The Palm Beach County Community Relations Board decided to investigate the racial climate in Belle Glade after hearing charges that the situation in the city was similar to that in Miami prior to the riots of 1980, and could erupt any time.

Florida Rural Legal Services Attorney Don Mason told the board there is "a serious racial problem bubbling here in Belle Glade which will burn some day."

In a letter to the county commission dated December 23, 1981, Belle Glade Mayor Thomas L. Altman said he could assure the commissioners that "racial tensions, as described by Mr. Mason... do not exist in Belle Glade at this time."

If the board does investigate the situation and talks to residents of the community, what would they find?

The Herald-Observer asked several Belle Glade residents how they view the racial climate in the city. The answers discussed a wide range of topics from jobs to schools to racial interaction.

Those who answered were divided in their views of the racial climate of the city.

"It's all right with me," said Irving Carr, a temporary resident from Jamaica.

"Out there where I live, I've been doing pretty good," said Arethus Hudson of Runyon Village. "It will be 20 years I worked one job and I never had any problem. I never had no trouble out there. Never had a bit of trouble."

"I think they (the races) get along very well," said Marie Meeks of NW Third Street.

"I believe it's overpopulated," said Gail Rushing, also of Runyon Village. "I believe it's definitely outnumbered by the blacks. The only problem I see is with the school system. It's not the local principals, it's the county school board. They have dropped the level of education to the point where no one's benefiting from it. When the kids graduated from high school, I know a lot of black kids that we know graduated straight As and when they went to the university, they flunked out in the first six weeks. And I think it's a shame. If we can pick that up, that's the only problem I see. I have nothing against the ratio number. But I resent having to send my kids to private school."

"I don't know what to tell you, everybody's got to live," said Ada Wilkerson of NW Eleventh St. "Everybody's trying to work. It's a mess if you want me to tell you. It's really a mess. But I guess everybody's got the right to try to live as all I can say, I don't try to hard time nobody. I feel like I don't know all the issues and a lot of things I don't really understand. I'm trying to understand. It's hard, it's really making it harder for the homeowners here. I've been here ever since '39, and this has been the worst."

"I don't think it's a very good racial climate," said Cynthia Samuels of SW Fourth Street. "I think it could be better. As far as the businesses are concerned, I think they could be more partial towards blacks because the blacks patronize their businesses more than any other nationality. And as far as the public facilities, I think it can be improved."

"Well, I tell you, there are more (black) people than there are white," said Doris Brooks of NW Third Street. "They don't bother me, I work with them. They don't bother me. I stay on my side of the tracks and they stay on theirs."

"What do I think of it? I think it's pretty bad," said one unidentified man. "It's just a bad situation right now."

"It's all right," said Edwin Coffie of SW Avenue D. "There doesn't seem to be a bunch of prejudices or whatever. It's pretty well balanced. No big problem, not as far as I can see, around the people I can see from day to day. It's no big problem."

"Well, to me, I feel like it don't make no difference or not what color you are. I grew up with all kinds of people. It don't make no difference to me. I think, let everybody think their own way, you can't tell nobody nothing," said Carver Joseph of SW Ave B.

"It's all right, nothing's wrong with it," said Ruth Johnson of SW Ave E.

"It's not too obvious, I'll say it in this respect," said Oliver Audrey of SW Fifth Street. "It's not too obvious, but it's here. It's definitely here, I'll say it like that. You can take an observation from the street yourself. Everybody is programed and stuff. Everybody thinks they should work and stuff. And then the black policemen, they don't really patrol the northwest section, you know, and they don't really arrest no white folks."

Alfonso Walker of SW Fifth Street said he doesn't think the situation in Belle Glade has changed "since 1964."

"There's no job opportunities in Belle Glade, I think, for a black man," said Willie Davis of SW B Place, who said he had been searching for a job since August. "I could ask any black kid in this town 'Who is Paul Robeson?' I could stop some black kids and ask them 'Who is Martin Luther King?' They don't even know who Martin Luther King is. I question the background of some of the things that coming out from the school. I don't think you can put this on the black man of Belle Glade. You've got to put it in the whole of Belle Glade itself. I see so much progress in other cities, it seems like my own town, I see no progress."

"Well, we don't have too much of a racial problem," said Violet Edwards of SW Tenth Street. "I think it's kind of equal opportunity."

"I was born and raised here in Belle Glade," said one unidentified woman. "And so far, there hasn't been any problems. My kids go to public school, and they're not going to go to any private school. All the kids here should go to public schools, because we got the best elementary school over here at Grove in the county, I think. And I don't think there's any problem, because I went to school with all of them. Black, white or what. I went to school with them all. We haven't had any problem. I think a lot of people are making too much out of it."

Free Spirit

Going around the world in ten years

By JEFF BROWN

BELLE GLADE - David Wilson and Jim McMinn are on a tour of the world.

They aren't out to break any speed records - they figure their tour will take ten years.

And they aren't necessarily looking for the shortest route. They estimate they will traverse about 52,000 miles before getting back home in North Miami.

They aren't really out for the fun of it either. They try lugging a 16 foot fol boat up a 40 foot dike and then reloading 400 pounds of equipment and supplies into it before hopping in and peddling off again.

That's right, a fol boat. It's a cross between a canoe and a kayak, according to Wilson, 44.

"She won't tip, she won't roll," said McMinn, 39. Wilson demonstrated the boat's ability to stay up right while explaining that, unlike a canoe, a person can stand up in a fol boat without capsizing the vessel.

The two left North Miami, where they both live, December 28, 1982 on their global trip, named "Free Spirit Expedition Two."

Wilson is a veteran and originator of "Free Spirit Expedition One," he said.

On that trip, he and another partner travelled from Los Angeles to Miami in a fol boat, and started to Bimini. That trip ended in tragedy, according to Wilson, when his partner was lost in a shark attack.

That was two and a half years ago, and Wilson found a new partner to undertake the second "Free Spirit" project.

He said he met McMinn canoeing, and the two went through a sort of training program on the white waters of the Colorado and Snake rivers and the Pacific. They also made excursions to the Suwannee River.

What is the purpose of this trip if it isn't for the enjoyment of it?

According to Wilson, this will mark the first time in recorded history that anyone went around the world in a self-powered boat.

"We're trying to prove that ancient man, before the invention of the sail or engine, did migrate from one continent to another by following the coasts," said Wilson.

They are trying to plan their trip so that they are at certain points during appropriate seasons. For instance, they have set a goal to cross over to Asia from the Aleutians in the Spring of whatever year they reach the area.

If they cannot find an escort to cross the Bering Sea, they plan to travel north to the Bering Straits and cross.

Can they be sure the Soviets will allow them to camp on Russian land at night? Wilson said they have arranged for travelling papers through the appropriate embassies.

"That cost money," he said. "That's what took most of our money."

There are only two things that could stop the expedition, according to Wilson: lack of faith on the part of the people and lack of sponsorship funds.

The expedition is dependent on funds provided by sponsors. Neither one of the men can hold jobs while on the expedition.

"People ask us why we don't stop and work on the way," said Wilson. "Well, if we stopped and worked on the way, the expedition would last 50 years instead of 10."

The two will cross the Pacific in the Bering Straits or Aleutian Islands area, but how will they get from Europe to North America? Or Africa to South America?

According to Wilson, they will travel over the North Pole if they can get an escort. If they cannot, they will unload at Dublin, Ireland and fly to Nova Scotia, where they will pick up the journey again.

"I told Jim that if we reach Nova Scotia, I'll swim to Miami," said Wilson. "It's all downhill from there. Of course, I can't swim. So I'll have to learn how to on this journey."

"Publicity is important to this expedition," said Wilson. "We want to capture the spirit of the people. We're two Americans who are trying to do the sort of things the settlers did who set off across the west in wagons after gold."

They said they would lecture to groups on the way if invited.

"Especially children," said Wilson. "They're just great and come up with the darndest things to ask about. Like how do you go the bathroom. This came from a seven year old girl so you can't really answer. I just said we have two stories under the boat and go below."

The two are taking their time, taking one barrier and obstacle at a time, stopping off when they can to clean up and shave, as they did in Belle Glade.

"We're not bums," said McMinn.

Before taking up the expedition, McMinn was an electrician and said he could get into work anywhere when the journey is over.

Wilson said he was a photojournalist with Time, Inc. He is carrying a camera with him on the trip.

On his jacket, Wilson wears a patch he claims was designed by Neil Armstrong, the first man to walk on the moon. The patch says "An Odyssey Around the Third Planet from the Sun."

"(He Armstrong) said what we're doing is more important than what he did," said Wilson. "They were in a controlled environment and if anything went wrong, they'd get called back, but we're against the elements."

They both said they intend to write a book about the journey after it is over.

"I've been trying to think up names for it already," said Wilson. "But I guess we have to get through it first."

EQUIPMENT FOR A WORLD TRIP doesn't look like much when it sits on the ground in one heap.

ON THEIR WAY - Jim McMinn, left, and his partner, Wilson, sit in the fol boat, ready to begin the next leg of their trip around the world.

Is there a password to obtain entrance into the Kingdom of Heaven? Is there a magic formula which will guarantee admission to God's heavenly estate? Will enough good works open the door to the domain of God?

Jesus says, "Not everyone who says to me, 'Lord, Lord,' shall enter heaven, but the one who does the will of my Father in heaven."

These words were spoken after Jesus had talked about being known by our fruits. This gives us a clue to a full and well-rounded Christian life. Jesus was familiar with those who were mechanical and orthodox in their religious observance. He knew those who were enthusiastic but lacked true love of God and their fellowman in their belief.

Jesus is saying that you may swear to faith in God but that this is of no value if it is not changed into concrete obedience to His will. Belief without this obedience is a destructive hypocrisy.

In other words, it takes more than true belief to gain admission into God's kingdom. It does not mean just saying the correct words. It does indicate that we must mean what we are saying.

All of us are in danger of giving intellectual approval to God's truth and then denying it in our character and life. We must not trust faith in Christ, of trusting belief about God instead of becoming a spiritually changed person.

Further, it takes more than a grasp of the true doctrine and even ardent and zealous belief. An intellectual knowledge of God with a strong emotion is not enough.

We must remember there is a difference between spiritual fervor and animal zeal and enthusiasm. Even if we cry while we pray that does not make us more spiritual. We are warned not to rely on a correct belief coupled with enthusiasm. Don't assume because you are orthodox in belief and are excited about it that you are necessarily a Christian.

Jesus said that it was food for Him to do the will of His Father, so that His disciples have no goal other than doing the will of the Father our God. We can call Jesus, 'Lord, Lord,' but we do this in vain unless we do what He commands. Accepting Christ as Lord means we are willing to give obedience.

If we accept Christ as teacher we have no business doing this unless we are ready to pay attention to His teachings. The Jews have a saying, "Be strong as the leopard and swift as the eagle, fleet as the gazelle, and brave as the lion, to do the will of your Father who is in heaven."

Doing the will of God as taught is not easy because it demands a great deal of us — complete dedication. It is doing what we are called to do — spread the Word of God as expressed by Jesus Christ in His life, suffering, death and resurrection.

We cannot do less than to speak of the salvation as offered by God in Jesus Christ. We cannot go through the motions of Christianity, but we must live what we believe and do what we are commissioned to do.

There is no magic formula, or password to gain admission to the kingdom, nor can we do enough good acts to gain admission, but we can continually pray and seek to do what He has in mind for us to be — ambassadors for Christ, proclaiming the reconciling love of God.

We can talk to others when God has done for us and what a difference it makes in our lives and that we want to share this love. Good acts come as a result of love and not as pay for admission into the kingdom.

The Key to the Kingdom of God is doing what our Heavenly Father wants us to do.

CHECK-UP TIME

Periodically your company requires that you have a "physical." My health is too important to neglect — and so are you — to neglect it. Nobody requires me to have a "physical." The world requires only that a person's physical health be in good condition. Unfortunately, check-up time for our spiritual health is often postponed until we are too late. Each week there are opportunities for worshiping God, for deepening our religious beliefs, for cultivating spiritual strength, and for our churches and synagogues provide us with a vital

Harvesters move to save damaged cane

Sugar cane harvesting has moved into those areas worst hit by the December freezes in an effort to salvage damaged cane.

Damage ranging from slight to severe occurred in the Moore Haven, sand land, western, southwestern, and extreme eastern portions of the sugar cane growing area, according to Dalton Yancey, general manager of the Florida Sugar Cane League Inc.

"Mills are moving harvest operations into what looks like the worst areas so cane can be salvaged before it deteriorates," Yancey said. The amount of acreage involved is not yet known.

The freezes will have some effect on the yield, "but the total should be slight," according to Yancey. Florida's production will still exceed a million tons of sugar, he said, but it's doubtful the total will reach the 1,184,000 tons predicted at the start of the season.

Explaining the effect of a freeze on cane, Yancey said that the sugar in the damaged cane stalk is converted into "invert sugars" by bacteria. Instead of producing sugar, the cane yields only molasses.

"Last year we made 70 million gallons of molasses; we'll make a few more this year and less sugar," said Yancey.

Cool weather would inhibit the bacteria growth, he added.

Hand labor is an advantage in harvesting the damaged cane, according to Yancey, because the decay starts at the top of the stalk and an experienced cutter can lop off the damaged area and leave it in the field.

Despite the cane damage, Yancey said Florida will still be the No. 1 sugar producer.

After a full year of wildlife that proved the most damaging on record, Florida faces an even more threatening fire situation during the next four months, Commissioner Doyle Conner said today.

"The Division of Forestry has reported more than 14,400 fires in 1981, and they burned more than 565,000 acres," he said. "By in-convenience calculation, the trees lost were worth $40 million or more. The inconvenience to the Florida public, and the damage to the environment, were costs that cannot be evaluated in dollars."

Conner added, "We're going into the peak winter fire season with rainfall deficient over nearly all the state, and ground water levels at record lows."

"All the state's wildfire fighting equipment — city, county and state — is likely to be taxed to the utmost, just as it was many times during 1981, unless all citizens do their part by being careful with outside fires," he said.

The fire total for 1981 was nearly twice the normal number of fires per year, while the acreage that burned was nearly three times normal.

"I feel that Florida escaped a major disaster by the skin of its teeth, thanks to skilled and effective work by local fire departments, the Forestry Division's ranger crews and the able help of firefighters provided by landowners," said John Betha, director of the Department of Agriculture and Consumer Service's Division of Forestry.

"But we have no reason to assume that we can continue to stave off disaster indefinitely," he continued. "We must quickly strengthen our rural firefighting resources by providing better equipment to local fire departments, as well as Forestry units. We will call this need to the attention of the 1982 Legislature."

Betha said that for several reasons, the potential of disastrous

Gilmore held in December attack

BELLE GLADE — The Belle Glade Police have arrested a man in connection with a December 13 shooting.

According to Detective J.L. Eberle, Terry Lee Gilmore, 23, of 725 SW Avenue C Place was arrested December 31 and charged in the December 13 shooting of Carolyn Brown, 20, of Fort Lauderdale.

Gilmore was charged with aggravated battery, shooting in an occupied dwelling, possession of a fire arm in the commission of a felony, possession of a fire arm by a convicted felon and three counts of aggravated assault.

According to Eberle, four people, Brown,

Angela Houston, 18, of 1252 Vaughan Circle in Belle Glade; Willie Grant, 18, of 545 and a half SW Fifth Street and Frankie Cohen, 20, of 416 SW Avenue B Place, were sitting in Cohen's apartment when Gilmore allegedly entered brandishing a gun and said "Is someone looking for me?"

He then allegedly shot once into the group of four, hitting Brown in the foot.

The women fled and Gilmore forced the two men to leave at gunpoint.

Brown was taken to Glades General where she was treated and admitted.

Howard facing burglary charges

BELLE GLADE — A 28-year old man is facing criminal charges in connection with a January 2 theft.

Leonard Howard was arrested January 3 and charged with burglary and grand theft stemming from the January 2 theft of an AM-FM radio, cassette player from the SW C Place residence of Jean Joseph Damour. The radio-player was valued at $200.

Fat not always bad

GAINESVILLE — The turn of a new year finds millions of overweight Americans solemnly resolving to lose weight. And for many dieters, that means crossing bacon, butter, and high fat products off the shopping list. But a University of Florida food scientist says people who try to eliminate fats completely from their diet are making a mistake.

"Most people, when they think of fats, think 'bad,'" says Dr. James Oblinger of UF's Institute for Food and Agricultural Sciences (IFAS). "But fat supplies the most concentrated source of energy in the human diet. Furthermore, vitamins A, D, E, and K are found primarily in fats. It's necessary for people to take in fats and they'd be lost without them."

The reason dieters worry about fats is because they provide twice as much body energy — in the form of calories — as any other kind of food. Most Americans lead sedentary lives, and if the energy isn't used up it turns into fat.

The average person, Oblinger said, gets about 40 percent of his body calories from intake of fat. For many even this is too much and the individual who gets a lot more, — say, 60 percent — needs to cut back on fat intake.

The government regulates the amount of fats manufacturers can put in many foods, and the wise consumer can often keep an eye on fat intake by reading product labels. For example, mayonnaise is required to contain at least 80 percent fat, but salad dressing may have as little as 30 percent. Margarine must be at least 80 percent vegetable oil, but "diet" imitation margarine may have as little as 40 percent. Hot dogs may contain no more than 30 percent fat, but breakfast sausages may contain up to 50 percent.

Oblinger says fat dieting — in which people are permitted only a very limited variety of low fat foods — probably isn't a good idea. Dieters who limit fat intake severely may risk real health problems from vitamin deficiencies in the long run.

"The simplest and safest way to lost weight," Oblinger says, "is to eat a variety of foods but just don't eat as much. That includes fats, carbohydrates, and protein."

"Instead of eating a large portion of meat, potatoes, eat half a portion. Instead of a large slice of roast beef or T-bone steak, eat half as much. Then, get into some form of exercise. It doesn't have to be pushups or weightlifting. Walking is an excellent form of exercise."

You don't have to make dramatic changes in the kinds of food you eat — just eat less and get some exercise. That's the key."

Taxpayers receive packets

Approximately four million Florida taxpayers will be receiving their 1981 federal income tax packages within the next two weeks, according to Charles O. DeWitt, Internal Revenue Service district director for Florida.

"We expect that nearly all packages will be in the hands of taxpayers by January 7," DeWitt said. Based on the forms filed last year, the IRS is mailing 2.9 million 1040 "long form" packages and 1.7 million 1040A "short form" packages to Floridians.

Although there have been some changes as a result of recent tax legislation, Floridians will find that most of the lines on the 1040 and 1040A forms and the related schedules are the same as last year. Fifty-four percent of the state's taxpayers made out their own returns last year, and DeWitt added that most persons should be able to prepare their own for 1981.

The most significant change in this year's tax package is that it now features only one tax table to be used by all taxpayers, regardless of filing status. Previously, there were four separate tables. Because of this change, an extra step, in which the taxpayer subtracts $1,000 from gross income for each exemption, has been added to the computations.

The tax tables, which include the tax rate reduction credit, have also been expanded and now cover adjusted gross incomes up to $50,000. Previously, the tax tables only went up to $20,000 for individual taxpayers and $40,000 for married filing jointly.

Another significant change will be found on the 1040A "short form," which can now be used to report any amount of interest and dividend income. Previously, this form could only be used for amounts up to $400.
